

Project Concept: Indiana Trauma and Resilience Web Site

Purpose is to provide a central source of information for providers in all fields on the following:

- Indiana's accepted definitions and terms related to trauma and resilience (these would be endorsed by the Children's Commission)
- Upcoming training opportunities on trauma awareness and trauma-informed responses to children, youth, and families
- Resources related to trauma and resilience, including a possible section to highlight work being done around the state of Indiana.

Questions that need to be answered:

- Are there any similar resources already existing? If yes, does it make more sense to build on and promote one of those?
- If a new trauma hub is created, where should it be housed? State agency, non-profit, Children's Commission?
- What will be the criteria for a training to be listed on the site?
 - Location
 - Audience
 - Open/closed
 - Trainer credentials
 - Content focus
 - Population of focus
 - Level (intro/awareness, in-depth, skill-based)
- Who will keep the site updated and approve the listings?
- How will the site be promoted and gain visibility?
- How will success be measured?
